

Why Is Our Government-Media Complex Ready to Commit National Suicide for Islam?

BY DAVE GIBSON

Recently, Facebook founder, Mark Zuckerberg, made a pledge to Muslims to protect their right to free speech on his massive social networking site. He made this vow to the “Muslim community” in the wake of the Islamist attacks in Paris and San Bernardino.

Zuckerberg stated:

I want to add my voice in support of Muslims in our community and around the world.

After the Paris attacks and hate this week, I can only imagine the fear Muslims feel that they will be persecuted for the actions of others....

If you're a Muslim in this community, as the leader of Facebook I want you to know that you are always welcome here and that we will fight to protect your rights....<sup>1</sup>

Of course, Zuckerberg feels no such obligation, nor allegiance with Christian, conservative, or Tea Party Facebook members. Nor with those who simply report the truth about the violence currently being wrought in the name of Allah.

Not only has he failed to publicly make the same protections available to non-Muslims, but Facebook has been deleting articles that in any way may cast adherents of Islam in a negative light, even when their behavior is criminal. Posts are being deleted, pages are being taken down, and even individuals who post articles, political cartoons, or even simple comments which Zuckerberg's agents deem “anti-Muslim,” are being placed into what has become known by conservatives as “Facebook jail” (banned for 30 days or expelled altogether, for expressing their beliefs).

This columnist recently experienced this firsthand, when an article first published in 2015, entitled “Pedophilia is a Cornerstone of Islam,” was re-posted by the news page known as “The Revolution.”<sup>2</sup> The article, which received more than 500,000 views, was taken down, as was the page, at least temporarily.

Never mind the fact that every word of the article, which dealt with the issue of taking child brides by Muslim men, was true, and has been carried by numerous other outlets over the past year...of course, the left never allows the truth to get in the way of their agenda.

So, since Zuckerberg apparently has a close relationship with President Obama, who regularly refers to acts of Islamic terrorism as “workplace violence,” I am forced to ask the question...

Mr. Zuckerberg: Will you stop deleting our content and extend to the rest of us those protections which you have specifically promised to Muslims, if instead of using the terms “Muslim” or “Islam” when describing acts of rape and mass murder carried out in the name of Allah, we adopt the term “the religion of workplace violence?”

Or, better yet, could you actually afford those of us who are weary of the violence and threats of violence coming from the Muslim world, as well as the deafening silence from the so-called “moderate Muslims,” to speak our minds and identify the enemies of the West by their actual name?

You see, not all of us are interested in committing national suicide, nor do most of us live in mansions with state-of-the-art security systems and armed guards protecting our families.

WHY ARE THE FEDS PROTECTING THE “RELIGION OF WORKPLACE VIOLENCE?”

On December 2, 2015, just hours after 14 people were murdered and another 22 people were wounded at a mass shooting at San Bernardino County's Inland Regional Center, a facility for the developmentally disabled, Fox News announced that the FBI's Joint Terrorism Task Force (JTTF) was working the case.

The JTTF's website states:

ysts, linguists, SWAT experts, and other specialists from dozens of U.S. law enforcement and intelligence agencies.

When it comes to investigating terrorism, they do it all: chase down leads, gather evidence, make arrests, provide security for special events, conduct training, collect and share intelligence, and respond to threats and incidents at a moment's notice.<sup>3</sup>

While one of the shooters apparently worked for the San Bernardino County Health Department in some capacity, this was hardly an instance of “workplace violence,” but Islamic terrorism, considering the following:

- The shooters were Muslim (Farook is said to have been born in the U.S., while his wife [Tashfeen Malik] was brought over from Saudi Arabia); the couple's home was booby-trapped with explosive devices; the shooters were dressed in tactical gear, including body armor; the father of one of the shooters (Saed Farook), said his son was “very religious” during a hastily called Council on American Islamic Relations (CAIR) press conference; the shooters threw pipe bombs at the police when being pursued; the shooters were wearing “GoPro” cameras as they carried out the massacre; if there were not others involved, the FBI would not be investigating the case.

Additionally, the police called the couple's home an “IED factory,” as they found radio-controlled model cars equipped with bombs.

There has been much made of the fact that Farook actually attended the Christmas Party held at the center, but left early in a hurry. It is likely that he was simply casing the place to check out security at the facility.

San Bernardino Police Chief Jarrod Burguan told the press:

There had to be some sort of planning that went into this...I don't think they just ran home, put on these types of tactical clothes, grabbed guns and came back on a spur of the moment.<sup>4</sup>

This was obviously not a case of “spontaneous violence,” unless you believe that two people could assemble this type of arsenal within only a few hours, and proved to be yet another case of radicalized Muslims, carrying out a terrorist attack on U.S. soil.

However, Obama initially attempted to deflect the American people from the truth, as he did after the Fort Hood Massacre, in which another Muslim shooter killed and wounded dozens of people, while shouting “Alahu Akbar.”

Of course, the day after Maj. Malik Hasan shouted “Alahu Akbar” as he gunned down fellow soldiers at Fort Hood, President Obama told us not to “jump to conclusions” about motives. Since then there has been more than enough evidence to prove that Dr. Hasan was a fanatic who put loyalty to Islam above all else. His statements to colleagues, his Internet postings, and his disturbing behavior have been widely reported elsewhere, but if confirmation were necessary one need only look at Maj. Hasan's business card. It included not only his qualifications and contact information but also the line “SoA (SWT).” Experts tell us that SoA stands for “Soldier of Allah,” and SWT stands for “Subhanahu Wa Ta'all,” or “glory to God” in Arabic.

Taking their cue from the President, the mainstream media downplayed Maj. Hasan's fanaticism, and offered threadbare excuses about mental instability and harassment from non-Muslim colleagues. Typical was MSNBC's Hardball anchor Chris Matthews' explanation as to why the Army and FBI did nothing when Maj. Hasan tried to get in touch with al-Qaeda: “That's not a crime to contact al-Qaeda is it?”

Perhaps most revolting was the reaction by Army Chief of Staff General George Casey on Meet the Press. He, too, warned against drawing conclusions about Maj. Hasan's motives, and lamented that “it would be a shame — as great a tragedy as this was — it would be a shame if our diversity became a casualty as well.” He seemed to imply that “diversity” was more important than practical measures to keep murderous Muslims out of the military.

Despite the government cover-ups and media spinning, there is no doubt that we have Muslim terrorists plotting and attacking inside the United States. If we are to survive, we must open our eyes to the facts and stop worrying about who may be offended if we take measures to protect ourselves.

With 86 percent of Americans identifying themselves as Christians, radical Muslims realize that they will never convert us, and some, as directed by the Koran, have now decided to kill us. However, you will never hear that painful truth from the mouths of network anchors or from our spineless politicians.

Time and time again, we have watched public officials quickly describe murderous attacks as being the act of a so-called “lone nut” and dismiss radical Islam as the motivating factor, even before all of the facts of the case are known. We have watched such politically correct phenomena, often, only to discover later that they were in fact, acts of Muslim terrorism.

What follows is a list of known plots and terrorist attacks carried out since September 11, 2001, by Muslim radicals living in the U.S.:

- On July 4, 2002, Egyptian national Hesham Mohamed Hadayet walked into Los Angeles International Airport and shot and killed El Al stewardess Vicky Chen and Los Angeles resident Yaakev Aminov. Mr. Hadayet also stabbed an El Al security guard who shot and killed him. Israeli officials were unanimous in calling the attack terrorism, but Americans disagreed. FBI spokesman Matt McLaughlin told reporters: “There is no indication of any terrorism connection in this matter,” and Los Angeles Mayor James Hahn called it “an isolated incident.”
- In March 2003, while he was stationed in Kuwait with American forces preparing to attack Iraq, Sgt. Hasan Karim Akbar tossed a grenade and fired into a tent filled with sleeping soldiers. In an attack clearly aimed at officers, he killed Army Capt. Christopher Seifert and Air Force Maj. Gregory Stone, and injured 14 other soldiers. Mr. Akbar, a black who was born Mark Kools, converted to Islam after joining the Army, and identified with Iraqis rather than with his fellow soldiers. “You guys are coming into our countries, and you’re going to rape our women and kill our children,” he said after he was arrested. Sgt. Akbar was sentenced to death and is awaiting execution.
- In October 2005, a 21-year-old white student attending the University of Oklahoma accidentally exploded a backpack bomb outside of a sold-out football game at Oklahoma Memorial Stadium. According to eyewitness accounts, Joel Henry Hinrichs was sitting on a park bench about 100 yards from the stadium fidgeting with his backpack, when the bomb went off. He is thought to have been arming the bomb before carrying it into the stadium crowded with 84,500 fans. Mr. Hinrichs had a Pakistani roommate and had marked Muslim leanings. Police searched their apartment and discovered more bomb-making materials as well as anti-Semitic, anti-American Islamic literature. The FBI claimed that Hinrichs was simply a “troubled” young man.

- In March 2006, a young Muslim named Mohammed Reza Taheri-azar rented an SUV and drove it into a crowd of students at the University of North Carolina, injuring nine people. The Iranian native told police he was retaliating for “the treatment of Muslims around the world.” At his arraignment, Mr. Taheri-azar told the judge he was “thankful for the opportunity to spread the will of Allah,” and has since pleaded guilty to nine counts of attempted murder.
- In July 2006, Naveed Afzal Haq forced his way into the Seattle Jewish Federation and shot six people, killing one, before surrendering to a SWAT team. He attacked only women, one of whom was pregnant. Jewish Federation employee Marla Meislin Dietrich told reporters that as Mr. Haq walked the halls firing, he shouted: “I’m Muslim-American” and “I’m angry at Israel.” His father is a founder of a Seattle-area mosque. The authorities refused to call this terrorism; Seattle Mayor Greg Nickels insisted it was “a crime of hate.” The city’s police chief, Gil Kerlikowske, added that he was “protecting mosques because there is always concern about retaliatory activity.”
- In August 2008, two weeks before the Democratic National Convention, Somali-born Saleman Abdirahman Dirie was found dead of cyanide poisoning in a room at the Burnside Hotel in Denver, just a few blocks from the state capital. In his room was more than a pound of sodium cyanide, which is commonly found in rat poison. It can also be mixed with certain acids to produce extremely lethal cyanide gas that could have killed a large number of people. The FBI downplayed any possible connection to terrorism, and the story immediately dropped from sight.
- In October 2008, Shirwa Ahmed exploded a bomb in a suicide attack at a United Nations checkpoint in Northern Somalia, killing 29 people. Ahmed was a naturalized U.S. citizen, living in Minneapolis, Minnesota, after immigrating from Somalia, and is thought to be the first American citizen to kill himself in a suicide attack. In 2008, more than a dozen men of Somali descent disappeared from Minneapolis. U.S. law enforcement believes all of them have returned to Somalia to attend terrorist training camps or to join the al-Shabaab terrorist organization, which is closely allied with al Qaeda.

- In December 2008, five Muslims were convicted of a 2007 conspiracy to commit an armed attack at Fort Dix, in New Jersey. Mohamad Shnewer, Dritan Duka, Eljvir Duka, and Shain Duka, were sentenced to life in prison, and Serdar Tatar got a 33-year sentence. Three of the terrorists were illegal aliens who entered the United States from Mexico.

- In February 2009, Muzzammil Hassan, the founder of “Bridges TV,” a network based in upstate New York, decapitated his wife, Aasiya Hassan, at the television station in Orchard Park. She had filed for divorce, after making several charges of domestic abuse against her husband. The grisly murder left the couple’s two small children orphans. Hassan immediately confessed to the murder. Bridges TV was started, according to a press release as the “first-ever full-time home for American Muslims. Every day on television we are barraged by stories of a ‘Muslim extremist, militant, terrorist, or insurgent.’ But the stories that are missing are the countless stories of Muslim tolerance, progress, diversity, service and excellence that Bridges TV hopes to tell.”

- In May 2009, the FBI arrested four men who thought they were planting car bombs outside the Riverdale Temple and the Riverdale Jewish Center in New York City. They also planned to shoot down military aircraft with a Stinger missile. All of the bombs were fakes supplied by an informant. Three of the four men are black converts reported to have become radical Muslims in prison, and the fourth is Haitian. New York City Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said the men “wanted to commit Jihad” because they were angry that American soldiers were killing Muslims in Afghanistan and Pakistan.

- In June 2009, a black convert to Islam, 23-year-old Abdulhakim Mujahid Muhammad, drove up to an Army-Navy recruiting station in Little Rock, Arkansas, where two soldiers were taking a cigarette break, and opened fire. Mr. Muhammed, born Carlos Bledsoe, killed Pvt. William Long, 23, and wounded Pvt. Quinton Ezeagwula, 18. Police stopped and arrested Mr. Muhammad only 15 minutes after the shooting. The attack took place during the same week in which President Obama traveled to Egypt and made his apologetic speech to the Muslim world. Prosecutor Larry Jegley explained that Mr. Muhammed targeted soldiers because of what he considered to be their mistreatment of Muslims around the world, and explained that “if there had been more recruits out there at the time, he would have killed more of them, or tried to.”

- In September 2009, a grand jury indicted Afghan national Najibullah Zazi on a charge of conspiracy to use weapons of mass destruction. The FBI claims that he was plotting to blow up U.S. targets and was in possession of plans for making hydrogen peroxide-based bombs. Since his arrest, Mr. Zazi has admitted he received training at a terrorist training camp in Pakistan.

- Also in September 2009, FBI agents arrested 19-year-old Jordanian national Hosam Maher Husein Smadi. The young man, who claims to be an al Qaeda supporter, tried to blow up a high-rise office building in Dallas, Texas with a van filled with what he thought were explosives — duds supplied by FBI agents posing as fellow terrorists. He was arrested as soon as he dialed a cell phone that he thought would explode the fake bomb. Mr. Smadi came to the attention of the FBI because of postings on the Internet six months earlier. Here are some that the FBI presented at his arraignment: “We shall attack them in their very own homes. Brother, by God, we shall attack them in a manner that hurts, an attack that shakes the world. Oh Brother, let the backsliders know that the time for their destruction has come.” “I want to destroy ... targets ... everything that helps America in its war on Arabs will be targeted. By God who created me, there will not be a retreat at all, even if they take me to Guantánamo for the rest of my life. I will never forget Iraq, Palestine, Afghanistan, or any land where the call of, ‘There is no God but God, Muhammad is God’s Messenger’ is raised.”

- In December 2009, Binghamton University grad student Abdulsalam al-Zahrani, 46, was charged with the murder of anthropology professor Richard T. Antoun. The Saudi national entered Antoun’s office at Binghamton University and stabbed the 77-year-old professor to death with a kitchen knife. Police say that al-Zahrani was still in the building when they arrived. Witnesses told reporters that when police officers asked al-Zahrani about Antoun, he said, “Yeah, I just stabbed him.” Broome County District Attorney Gerald Mollen was very quick to rule out Islamic extremism as a factor in the murder, saying: “There is no indication of religious or ethnic motivation.” However, his former roommate, Luis Pena, said that al-Zahrani had complained about being persecuted for his Islamic beliefs. Pena also said that he heard him say: “I just feel like destroying the world.” Professor Antoun who had written several books about the Middle East, was a peace activist and often spoke about tolerance and understanding for other cultures and religions. One of his books, published in 2001, was entitled Understanding Fundamentalism: Christian, Islamic and Jewish Movements. Antoun’s sister Linda Miller, told the New York Times: “He dedicated his life to trying to understand the people of the Middle East. He never said an unkind word to anyone in his life.”...Working on his dissertation, al-Zahrani was studying pre-11th century Muslim scholars.

All of these attacks quickly disappeared from the nation’s newsrooms. Many Americans have either forgotten them or never even heard of many of them. That is no doubt the effect our press and politically correct government want to achieve.

Even during the 2002 Washington, D.C. sniper attacks, federal officials played down the possibility of terrorism. The snipers turned out to be two black Muslims — one an illegal alien. John Allen Muhammad modeled himself on Osama bin Laden, approved of the September 11 attacks, and reportedly planned to kill six white people a day for 30 days before setting up a camp in Canada where he would train young black boys to carry out mass-murder attacks in the United States. He and his protégé, Lee Boyd Malvo, killed some 20 people, but neither was characterized as a terrorist or even charged with a hate crime. Mr. Muhammad was executed on November 10, and Mr. Malvo is serving a life sentence.

Our political leaders either do not understand the threat posed by Muslims here in the United States or they are so committed to the dogma of diversity — the idea that every group is equal in every way and essentially interchangeable — that they refuse to draw even the most obvious conclusions about certain groups.

There are now an estimated six million Muslims living in the United States, with more than 300,000 living in the Dearborn, Michigan, vicinity alone. Some high schools in the area even serve halal meals to accommodate their 90-percent-Muslim student bodies.

There is a large and growing population — estimated at over 350,000 — of converted Muslims inside our prisons. In 2005, The New York State Correctional System reported that 18 percent of its total state prison population were practicing Muslims. Violent, anti-social inmates are excellent potential recruits for terrorist attacks, and some even get radical propaganda from official sources.

In November 2001, while the ruins of the World Trade Center were still smoldering, a veteran female Muslim chaplain at New York’s Albion Correctional Facility, Aminah Akbar, told a group of about 120 inmates, “Bin Laden is a warrior for Allah, as all Muslims should be. Bin Laden is a hero to all Muslims.” She also added, “I am not an American, I just live here.” Miss Akbar was fired for remarks likely to stir up tension between Muslim and non-Muslim prisoners, but an arbitrator ruled her firing was unjustified. With chaplains like her it is no wonder that Jose Padilla, who was arrested in 2002 for planning a “dirty bomb” attack, was a convicted felon who converted to Islam in prison.

Steve Emerson, an expert on Islamic terrorism, warns that there is almost no monitoring of what prison imams — full-timers and part-timers — say to inmates. In February 2005, FBI director Robert Mueller told the U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee that “prisons continue to be fertile ground for extremists who exploit...a prisoner’s conversion to Islam.”

Some public schools promote Islam. In 1997, the U.S.-based Council on Islamic Education produced a lesson plan for American children called “Muslim Holidays.” It is full of politically correct propaganda about Islam as well as tips on how to circumvent regulations against teaching religion in public schools. More than 4,000 U.S. teachers are reported to have used the lesson plan in their classrooms. The same education system that has done everything in its power to drive children away from Christianity is now pushing Islam.<sup>5</sup>

THE MYTH OF ‘MODERATE MUSLIMS’

In November 2015, while they were still washing the blood from the sidewalks of Paris, after 130 people were murdered and another 368 wounded by Islamic terrorists, we heard from conservatives who wanted to retaliate, and from liberals who urged “tolerance.”

However, we have yet to hear from the so-called scores of “moderate Muslims” who we are continuously told by the mainstream news media...really do exist!

Not one condemnation has come from any Muslim cleric, nor would our own closeted-Muslim president mention the fact that these attacks, like thousands of others, were carried out in the name of Allah.

Though a day after the attacks, the director of the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR), Nihad Awad, held a press conference in which he condemned ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq and Syria) for the deadly attacks, in the very next breath he claimed that ISIS “is not Islamic” (as has Obama). He also warned us of the way we characterize the terrorists: “lets not call them jihadists.”<sup>6</sup>

Of course, no one was even certain at that point that ISIS played any material role in the attacks. What was known was that at least some of the terrorists were so-called “immigrants” or “refugees,” and all were Muslim.

Anyone still remember the images of scores of Palestinians celebrating in the streets upon hearing news of the 9/11 Attacks (besides Donald Trump)?

Unfortunately, it would appear that the ‘moderate Muslims’ are the ones who cheer on the ones detonating suicide vests.

HOW MANY MUSLIMS ARE ENTERING THROUGH THE BACK DOOR?

On November 12, 2015, officials in Honduras caught five so-called Syrian refugees who were all carrying fake Greek passports.

They were apparently headed to Guatemala, then into Mexico, with their final destination being the United States, crossing over our unprotected border.

Reuters reported:

The Syrian men were held late on Tuesday in the Honduran capital, Tegucigalpa, on arrival from Costa Rica, and had been planning to head to the border with neighboring Guatemala. The passports had been doctored to replace the photographs with those of the Syrians, police said.

“We received information from (fellow) police services that these five Syrians left Greece and passed through Turkey, Brazil, Argentina, and San Jose in Costa Rica before finally reaching Tegucigalpa,” said Anibal Baca, spokesman for Honduras’ police.<sup>7</sup>

Officially, Mexico took in only 30 Syrian nationals between September and November 2015, according to El Financiero.<sup>8</sup>

Of course, large numbers of foreign nationals from such countries as China and various Muslim nations are regularly caught by the Border Patrol, entering this nation illegally from Mexico.

Given the lack of cooperation from the vastly corrupt government of Mexico on border security, we can soon expect to see large numbers of so-called Syrian refugees infiltrating this country.

In December 2011, the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) unsealed an indictment against well-known Lebanese drug trafficker and terrorist financier Ayman Joumaa. The indictment paints yet another frightening picture of terror group Hezbollah’s involvement on our southern border.

According to the DOJ, Joumaa shipped 85,000 kilograms of cocaine into the United States through the Mexican drug cartel known as Los Zetas. He also allegedly used various front companies as well as the Lebanese Canadian Bank (LCB) to launder more than $850 million in drug profits. The indictment reads: “During the course of the conspiracy, the defendant typically picked up between $2 [million] and $4 million at a time in Mexico City.”

Earlier this year, the U.S. Treasury Department alleged that Joumaa has been using currency exchange houses in Lebanon to launder money and also designated the LCB as a “Primary Money Laundering Concern.” Joumaa has been financing Hezbollah’s terror operations for several years, according to U.S. officials. Advertisement DEA Administrator Michele Leonhart told reporters: “According to information from sources, his alleged drug and money laundering activities facilitated numerous global drug trafficking organizations, including the criminal activities of the Los Zetas Mexican drug cartel.” In a statement, U.S. Attorney Neil MacBride said: “Money fuels the drug trade, and Mr. Joumaa is alleged to be at the center of it all. Working with those producing the vast majority of the world’s cocaine to get their drugs safely into the hands of Mexican cartels, and then moving hundreds of millions in proceeds all around the world so the money can’t be traced back to them in Colombia.”

While this may represent the first concrete proof of Hezbollah’s connection with a Mexican drug cartel, such involvement there has long been evidence to suggest that the cartels and Hezbollah have been working together, as U.S. prisons have been seeing tattoos on cartel operatives showing alignment to the terrorist organization. In January 2011, a police officer was killed and three others wounded when a car bomb went off near the town of Tula, Hidalgo, which is about 50 miles north of Mexico City. Police believe the Zetas Cartel was responsible for the attack. Police received an anonymous phone call claiming that a body was inside the car. The bomb detonated when they opened the trunk. Police Commander Victor Pena died from his injuries at a local hospital. According to Mayor Rodolfo Paredes, no body was found in the car. Police found a written message near the car, and believe the bombing was in retaliation for a recent shootout in which police officers killed two Zetas. During summer 2010, there was a spate of car bombings, which began in Juarez. While the attacks were part of the ongoing Mexican drug war which, so far, has claimed nearly 40,000 lives, it was the first time this tactic was used by the cartels. Many were remotely detonated by cell phones, a carbon copy of the type of bombings so often seen in the Middle East. On July 6, 2010, the Kuwaiti newspaper al-Seyassah reported that Mexican authorities arrested a Mexican national who was working for Hezbollah, and that the Islamic terrorist group has been recruiting Mexicans with ties to Lebanon to set up terror cells along the border. On June 23, 2010, Rep. Sue Myrick (R-NC) wrote a letter to then Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Janet Napolitano, asking that her agency form a task force to investigate the possible connection between the cartels and Hezbollah.

Though Napolitano quickly (and publicly) claimed there “was no credible information on terrorist groups operating along our Southwest border,” she also offered Rep. Myrick a classified briefing on the matter, which would have precluded the Congresswoman from speaking out publicly on the issue...Myrick refused the briefing.

THE “SCIENCE IS IN,” OBAMA IS A MUSLIM

If there was any doubt left in anyone’s mind as to whether or not President Barack Hussein Obama is still clinging to his Muslim faith, the events of the past seven years should have removed said doubt.

Not only did Obama refuse to travel to Paris to take part in the unity march against Islamic terrorism, he did not even bother to send any high-level representatives.

While Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, German Chancellor Angela Merkel, and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu were all in attendance, despite the “security concerns” cited by the Obama administration, our own feckless leader was likely sitting on his comfy couch watching football games (and/or praying to Mecca).

In reality, this president, who was raised a Muslim, goes out of his way at every turn to praise Islam and ignore the obvious threat of Islamic terror. In fact, Obama has yet to call the 2009 Fort Hood Massacre terrorism, still opting instead for the generic term of “workplace violence.”

Obama simply cannot bring himself to speak out against the religion and ideology he holds so dear.

But, he has claimed to be a Christian you say....

Yes, but the Quran permits Muslims to lie, or even falsely deny their own faith, if it is done in the service of Islam. For instance, to fool the infidels, in order to promote jihad. The practice is known as “taqiya.”<sup>9</sup>

Furthermore, both his father and his step-father were practicing Muslims, and he attended a Muslim school while being raised in Indonesia.

It is rather absurd to believe that this, or any other man could simply deny the religion of his youth.

However, if you need further evidence that this man who is destroying our nation is in fact a Muslim, consider the following:

- Obama has admitted he is a Muslim.

In July 2013, Egyptian Foreign Minister, Ahmed Aboul Gheit, appeared on NILE-TV and stated: “Obama told me he is still a Muslim, who supports the Muslim agenda.”

“Aboul Gheit said he had a one-on-one meeting with Obama, where the U.S. President told him that he was still a Muslim, the son of a Muslim father, the step son of Muslim stepfather, that his half brothers in Kenya are Muslims, and that he was sympathetic towards the Muslim agenda. Aboul Gheit claimed Obama told the Arabs to show patience. Obama promised that once he overcame some domestic issues, like the Health care reform, he would show the Muslim World how to deal with Israel,” reported Israel Today.

- Obama refuses to fly with First Dog “Bo.”

In July 2010, Maine’s Morning Sentinel reported:

Arriving in a small jet before the Obamas was the first dog, Bo, a Portuguese water dog given as a present by the late U.S. Sen Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.); and the president’s personal aide Reggie Love, who chatted with Baldacci.<sup>10</sup>

- Islam teaches that dogs are “unclean beasts” and Muslims are forbidden from traveling with them.

Abu Huraira, who traveled extensively with the Muslim prophet Muhammad, wrote thousands of “Hadiths,” one of which was: “Angels do not accompany the travelers who have with them a dog, and a bell.”<sup>11</sup>

- Using U.S. tax dollars to finance Islamic terrorism.

Despite the greatly hyped budget cuts of the sequester, Obama gave Egypt’s Muslim Brotherhood $450 million in financial aid (in addition to 200 tanks and several F-16s).

Of course, when order was restored and the military put an end to the Islamist violence, President Obama stopped all aid to Egypt.

- Honoring Islam, while disrespecting Christianity.

While Obama has not missed an Iftar dinner since taking office, and in fact, has issued official White House statements recognizing the observance of other Muslim holidays (Eid-ul-Fitr, Hajj, and Eid-ul-Adha), he continues to ignore the Christian celebration of Easter.

In comparison, President Bush not only issued official Easter proclamations, but even included passages from the Bible. In his 2007 statement, he said: “The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the most important event of the Christian faith. On this powerful day, let us join together and give thanks to the Almighty for the glory of His grace.”

Shortly after the 2013 Boston bombings, Obama held an unscheduled meeting with Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal at the White House. The Saudi national, Abdul al-Harbi, who had been questioned after the Boston Marathon bombing, was immediately ordered deported on “national security grounds,” effectively protecting the suspect from the FBI’s probing questions, despite the fact that al-Harbi’s family has several direct ties to al-Qaeda.<sup>12</sup>

In fact, it was later learned that Michelle Obama visited al-Harbi in the hospital, shortly before his “deportation.”

So, when you become infuriated with Obama’s insensitivity to the families of those killed by Muslim terrorists in the Fort Hood massacre and in the Benghazi attack, or because he may have sent one of those involved in the Boston Marathon bombing terror cell back to his powerful Saudi-terrorist family, don’t forget to place that blame where it really belongs...with those who laughably call themselves “Democrats,” who voted for this “international man of mystery.”

A NATION OF DHIMMIS...

Within hours of Pamela Geller’s May 2015 “Draw Mohammad” contest, in Garland, Texas, various Fox

News hosts began harshly criticizing Geller. Of course, the event ended with an act of Islamic terrorism, in which a security guard was shot and the two Jihadis were killed by local law enforcement.

The attack proved Geller’s point that Islamists have no place in this country, where freedom of speech is the order of the day.

However, she likely did not count on the Fox News network blaming her for the violence...

Three days later, Bill O’Reilly stated on “The O’Reilly Factor:”

By setting up a contest and awarding $10,000 for a depiction of the Prophet Mohammed, the American Freedom Defense Initiative spurred a violent attack.<sup>13</sup> He also called the event “stupid.”

Earlier in the evening, former Fox News host Greta Van Susteren criticized Geller, saying she put people at risk by holding the contest, saying:

Everyone knew this event would unglue some who might become violent. And the police had no choice but to do their job and be there to protect against violence.

Earlier that same day, Fox News contributor Laura Ingraham had Geller on her radio show, where she was less than hospitable to Geller. Mediaite reported:

And today, Ingraham hosted Geller on her radio show and confronted her right off the bat. She made it clear she's been very outspoken on these issues, before saying, "I don't think that our effort to combat the Islamization of the globe is necessarily helped by putting on Muhammad... art contests."

She mocked the idea this is "some bold stance," but Geller shot back that this is about the principle of free speech and not some kind of idealistic stance to "be all brave."

Ingraham insisted that she doesn't think "a lot is accomplished to advance the cause of freedom and liberty," bringing up how disgusted she was with other acts of free speech like the elephant dung Virgin Mary and "Piss Christ." She called such things unhelpful and asked Geller why she would "go out of the way to offend a billion Muslims."<sup>14</sup>

So, why has this supposedly "conservative" network taken the side of the radical Muslims?

What many of you may not know is that a devout Muslim now owns the second-largest controlling interest in 21st Century Fox, now the parent company of Fox News, according to the Securities and Exchange Commission.<sup>15</sup>

Saudi Prince Alaweed bin Talal also holds a seven percent share in News Corp., which is owned by Rupert Murdoch, the chief shareholder of Fox News.<sup>16</sup>

Politifact reported:

The relationship with Murdoch is reciprocal. News Corp. has a sizable stake in Rotana, a broadcasting company that airs Arabic and English programming in the Middle East. Alwaleed owns an 80 percent stake of Rotana, according to Bloomberg.<sup>17</sup>

Perhaps, every Fox News show should now be run with the disclaimer: "The views expressed on this show are largely those of a Saudi prince!"

DEARBORNISTAN...

The Muslim population in Dearborn, Michigan, and the surrounding area, which includes Detroit, numbers well over one hundred thousand. In fact, in Dearborn itself, four out of the seven-member city council are Islamic; the council became majority-Muslim after that city's 2013 municipal elections.

USA Today reported:

...the top vote-getter among the 14 candidates who ran for seven seats was newcomer

Susan Dabaja, an Arab-American Muslim who works as an attorney; she will be the council president. The 36-year-old mother of three told the Detroit Free Press she is the first Arab-American council president in the city's history. She also will be the only woman on the council.

But while Dabaja and other Arab Americans are pleased at the election results, they stress they are not out to dominate the city and they want to work with others to improve Dearborn....

"It's nice to have diversity" on the council, she said.<sup>18</sup>

As a further demonstration of how Muslims have taken over the entire culture of that part of Michigan, in 2010, Fordson High School in Dearborn began holding pre-season workouts in the middle of the night (from 11 p.m. To 4 a.m.) to accommodate the predominantly Muslim team. You see, the pre-season coincided with Ramadan...

ESPN reported:

A Michigan high school football team is holding preseason practices in the middle of the night to help its Muslim players practice both faith and football.

The predominantly Muslim squad from Dearborn says the nocturnal regimen is a way for players to eat and drink while observing the holy month of daytime fasting known as Ramadan that started last week.

Cutting practice wasn't an option at football-crazy Fordson, which is coming off a one-loss season and has won four state titles and three runner-up seasons since it was established in 1928.

But nobody wanted to lessen the significance of Ramadan in the Detroit suburb widely known as the capital of Arab-America.

The moonlight practice is tailored for Adnan Restum and fellow Muslim teammates.

Illuminated by the night lights on the football field, Restum recently joined a scrum of teammates at the end-zone water fountain, taking a break from a grueling preseason football workout to guzzle a drink.

In just a few hours, he wouldn't be able to take a sip. But the 17-year-old defensive tackle could rehydrate guilt-free during the 11 p.m. to 4 a.m. practice, and succumb to tempting boxes full of granola bars and chocolate milk, too.

“It feels really great,” said Restum, who has been fasting since he was about 10. “If we’re doing it during the day, we wouldn’t have water and it would be really hot and everything.”

Zaban proposed the late practices after realizing the rotating Ramadan would fall squarely during the start of a two-a-day practice schedule that launches football season.

Zaban, 40, a Muslim and former Fordson player, knows the high stakes. When Ramadan falls during football season, the players practice during daylight hours. But with August’s heat and doubled practice schedule, concerns grew about players’ health, particularly the high risk of heat stroke.

Working it out meant getting the approval of school and district administrators and the blessings of players, parents, and police. Then, there were the residents in the surrounding neighborhood, who would hear more noise and see the illuminated field. So he sent letters explaining the decision....<sup>19</sup>

Other high schools in the area also adopted the Islamic-friendly policy.

ISLAM IS SIMPLY NOT COMPATIBLE WITH CIVIL SOCIETY

The Quran orders Muslims to either enslave or kill those who refuse to worship Allah. The Muslim holy book does not teach love, but hate. Faithful Muslims are directed to kill the “infidels.”

The following are a few of the violent passages found within the Quran:

- “Believers, make war on the infidels who dwell around you.” (Sura 9:122)
- “...make war on the leaders of unbelief” (Sura 9:12)
- “Allah has given those that fight with their goods and their persons a higher rank than those who stay at home. He has promised all a good reward; but far richer is the recompense of those who fight for Him.” (Sura 4:96)
- “Believers, retaliation is decreed for you in bloodshed.” (Sura 2:178)

Of course, Islam views women as basically nothing more than property...

In October 2007, during a Saudi television show, Muslim cleric and author Muhamad Al-Arifi advised young Muslim men how to deal with their new wives.

Apparently in the shadow of Mecca, it is perfectly acceptable to beat your wife as long as you do not hit her in the face, so as not to “make her face ugly.”<sup>20</sup>

Al-Arifi said:

Beating in the face is forbidden, even when it comes to animals. Even if you want your camel or donkey to start walking, you are not allowed to beat it in the face. If this is true for animals, it is all the more true when it comes to humans. So beatings should be light and not in the face.

If he beats her, the beatings must be light and must not make her face ugly. He must beat her where it will not leave marks. He should not beat her on the hand...He should beat her in some places where it will not cause any damage. He should not beat her like he would beat an animal or a child-slapping them left and right.”

While this Muslim cleric’s words may be shocking to those of us who live in the civilized world, his advice is not new to the Muslim world.

In 2004 on Qatar television, a Muslim cleric declared the Quran to be an instructional book on how Muslim men should discipline their wives. “He said: We must know that [wife] beating is a punishment in Islamic religious law. No one should deny this because this was permitted by the Creator of Man, and because when you purchase an electric appliance or a car you get instructions—a catalogue, explaining how to use it. The Creator of Man has sent down this book [the Quran] in order to show which ways he must choose.”

He went on to explain that there are three types of women who must be beaten...

[The Quran says:] ‘and beat them.’ This verse is of a wondrous nature. There are three types of women with whom a man cannot live unless he carries a rod on his shoulder. The first type is a girl who was brought up this way. Her parents ask her to go to school and she doesn’t—they beat her. ‘Eat’—‘I don’t want to’—they beat her. So she became accustomed to beatings; she was brought up that way. We pray Allah will help her husband later. He will only get along with her if he practices wife beating.

The second type is a woman who is condescending toward her husband and ignores him. With her, too, only a rod will help. The third type is a twisted woman who will not obey her husband unless he oppresses her, beats her, uses force against her, and overpowers her with his voice.

In 2005, Mohammed Kamal Mustafa, an imam of a mosque in the Spanish city of Fuengirola, was given a jail sentence after being found guilty of incitement of violence, and told to spend six months studying Spain's constitution. Mustafa had written and published a guide on how to beat your wife without leaving any marks. His book, Women In Islam, advised Muslim husbands to beat their wives "on the hands and feet, using a light rod so that the blows don't leave scars or bruises."<sup>21</sup>

These monsters do not come to these boorish conclusions on their own. In fact the Muslim holy book, the Quran, counsels Muslim men on the "proper treatment of their wives."

Quran verse 4:34 says: "Men are superior to women on account of the qualities with which Allah has gifted the one above the other, and on account of the quality they make from their substance for them. Virtuous women are obedient, careful, during the husband's absence, because God has of them been careful. But chide those for whose stubborn disobedience you have cause to fear; remove them into beds apart, and scourge them; but if they are obedient to you, then seek not occasion against them. Allah is Great!"<sup>22</sup>

Furthermore, in order to understand a culture, you must examine how that culture views and treats their most vulnerable of citizens—their children. Most Americans could not imagine the horror of outliving their child, it is widely accepted that it is the worst experience one could endure.

However, what would seem to be a universal emotion does not hold true amongst scores of Arab Muslims. Many Muslims view their children as nothing more than walking bombs. An Egyptian children's show recently touted the fact that suicide bombing is in fact a Muslim family value.

A few years ago, Muslim cleric Sheik Muhammad Sharaf Al-Din said during an episode of a children's show appearing on the Egyptian Al-Nas network:

"We want mothers who teach their sons Jihad, the love of Allah and his messenger, sacrifice for the sake of Islam." The Sheik had just finished reading a story depicting Muhammad's triumph over a Jewish woman. After taking a phone call in which a Muslim boy named Ruqaya voiced his hatred of Jews, the Sheik began shouting "Allah Akbar!" Al-Din went on to say: "The Jews are the people of treachery, betrayal, and vile-ness."<sup>23</sup>

A June 15, 2006, episode of the same show, which is hosted by Muhammed Nassar of the Egyptian Ministry of Religious Endowment, encouraged young children to become martyrs for Islam and "kill infidels." Nassar addressed his young audience by saying: "Let's listen to a very beautiful story to learn about the courage of a child, and how, when a child is brought up in a good home, and receives proper education in faith, he loves martyrdom, which becomes like an instinct for him. He can never give it up."<sup>24</sup>

In 2005, a hate-filled claymation film entitled "Jews Turn Into Apes and Pigs, are Annihilated and Cast Into the Sea," was produced by Hezbollah for al-Manar TV in Lebanon. The short movie directed at children portrayed Jews as greedy peddlers in an open market, selling on the Sabbath. The Jews were later turned into pigs and monkeys by Allah and cast into the Red Sea for their crimes.

A children's cartoon which appears on Iranian television, tells the tale of a "bloodthirsty" Israeli army officer named Ariel, who is claimed to "have no mercy, not even for children." Of course, the Palestinians are shown as purely innocent victims of murdering "Zionists." The animated adventure ends with Palestinian children fulfilling their destiny by lobbing grenades at Israeli soldiers.

Evidently, the constant indoctrination of Muslim children is working. The Middle East Media Research Institute obtained a video of a young Muslim girl (who looks to be about six years old) announcing on Saudi Arabia's Iqra TV: "We don't want peace with the Jews."

The little girl who was being interviewed, was asked her opinion as to why the Israelis commit so much evil. The little darling proclaimed: "Because they are Jews, villains, dogs. You see? That's why... The Jews—we will drive them out of their homes!"

We have known for many years that multitudes of Muslim parents send their children away to madrassas, where these four- and five-year old children memorize the Quran and learn an incredible hatred for Jews and Christians. They are taught that the greatest accomplishment they could ever achieve is to kill an Israeli or an American.

Mothers of suicide bombers are hailed as heroes in the Muslim world and given special status. These women even receive financial rewards by groups such as Hezbollah (Saddam Hussein also provided $25,000 to the families of Palestinian suicide bombers) and are frequently featured on Muslim television shows. Considering the slave-like status of women in the Muslim world, the only way Muslim men would ever honor a woman is if she allows her son to blow himself to bits for Allah.

It is obvious that our Muslim enemies place no value on human life, not even for the life of their own children. It is also obvious that most of us cannot truly fathom the evil that we are now facing. Muslims are brainwashing their children to become hate-filled murderers.

Most of us want the very best for our children. We want them to become successful and happy adults. While we love to see them graduate, marry, get good jobs, and provide grandchildren, the urge to keep them safe is the strongest of all of our wishes.

It may be impossible for an American to understand how someone could encourage their child to kill himself in a murderous explosion. However, until we wake up to this horrible fact... we will never defeat this enemy.

Despite what the left says, there is no way that we can embrace the Muslim world and there is certainly no way that they will ever embrace us in the western world.

We must no longer allow Muslims to hide behind the banner of religion. If we do not recognize the Muslim threat lurking within this nation... We can look forward to seeing more smoke rising over American cities.

Islam seems to be nothing more than an excuse for third century throwbacks to act upon their most base instincts.

We can do very little about the cover-ups taking place inside this nation's newsrooms. It is apparent that the leftists sitting behind network anchor desks will stop explaining away Muslim murders only when their own heads are sawed from their bodies. However, we can direct our politicians to defend this nation. Let us take to the streets in peaceful, though robust protest, let us fill Congressional offices, and let us cast our votes wisely!

Those of us who have not been intellectually castrated will point out Islamic terrorism every time we see it. If we lack the courage to name our enemy or even recognize its violent acts, we can hardly expect to keep our country safe. ■
