

“Official English in the World”

Research by ProEnglish has identified 54 countries that have designated English as an official language. Most of those countries are in Africa, Asia, and the Caribbean.

The research shows the U.S. is out of step with most English-speaking nations, and is one of the few countries in the world without an official language. Ten Latin American nations have made Spanish their official language.

Of the 54 countries that have made English an official language, half (27) have made English their sole official language. Those are:

Antigua-Barbuda	Namibia
Bahamas	Nigeria
Barbados	Seychelles
Belize	Sierra Leone
Dominica	Solomon Islands
Micronesia	St. Lucia
Fiji	St. Vincent Grenadines
Gambia	St. Kitts-Nevis
Ghana	Trinidad-Tobago
Grenada	United Kingdom
Guyana	Uganda
Jamaica	Zambia
Kiribati	Zimbabwe
Liberia

Gabriel Schaefer, ProEnglish Research
www.proenglish.org